

CauseNET for May 28, 2003

Help us alert the public to the Federal Communications Commission's (FCC) actions that could affect the diversity, quality, and independence of the news and programming we listen to and watch. On June 2nd, without broad public notification or input, the FCC intends to vote on changing media ownership rules, which could allow near monopoly ownership of the airwaves by one large company.